SUMMARY

Full stack developer, passionate about technology and continuous improvement is seeking a technical role which will assist in the corporate strategies to produce positive financial returns. Over the past 13 years I have become well versed in operations, engineering, and business development of the oil and gas industry. I am now taking the skill sets I have acquired over my career and integrating them with software engineering. I am confident that I would make a positive contribution and would appreciate your consideration of my skills in this application.
